

Stumbleupon Evergreens

Aditya Garg

New York University
251 Mercer St, New York
10012
aditya.garg@nyu.edu

Sven Giesselbach

New York University
251 Mercer St, New York
10012
sag545@nyu.edu

Robert Moakler

NYU Stern School of Business
44 West 4th St, New York 10012
rtm288@stern.nyu.edu

Danilo Neves Ribeiro

New York University
251 Mercer St, New York
10012
dnr257@nyu.edu

Abstract

We will put our awesome abstract here.
(200 word limit)

1 Introduction

Introduction text

2 Data

3 Evaluation Metric

Talk about ROC.

4 Related Work

Talk about related work

4.1 Prior Studies

Talk about prior studies.

4.2 Baseline

Talk about the baseline posted.

5 Approach

Talk about approach.

5.1 Numerical Features

Numerical features.

5.2 Boilerplate Text

Boilerplate features.

5.3 Raw HTML

Raw HTML features.

6 Results

Talk about results

6.1 Categories

Talk about Alchemy, clustering, etc.

6.2 Evergreen Classification

How did we do?

7 Discussion

Discuss

8 Conclusion

Concluding remarks.

References

Alfred V. Aho and Jeffrey D. Ullman. 1972. The Theory of Parsing, Translation and Compiling, volume 1. Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, NJ.